

FAIR

PLAY.

VOLUME XIX.

STE. GENEVIEVE, MISSOURI, SATURDAY, JANUARY 24, 1891.

NUMBER 35.

GOVERNOR PENNELL and the other State officers of Oregon were sworn into office on the 1st.

Disference to French influence the Czar positively refuses to permit the Duke of Orleans to take service in the French army in any capacity.

A Frenchman, who was arrested in connection with the attempt to wreck the Czar's train at Borodino, will be transported to Siberia without the formality of a trial.

The Cillian Minister to Great Britain, Senator Antonio, denies that there has been fighting in any part of Chili, or that there is any revolutionary movement in progress in that country.

The composition of Prof. Koch's emetic lymph was made public by authority on the 10th. The lymph consists of a glycerine-extract obtained by the pure cultivation of tuberculous bacilli.

The South Dakota House of Representatives, on the 13th, Brown and Maxon, the two Republican members from Brown County, were unseated and Seitzendorf and Bates, Independent contestants for their seats, were sworn in.

The railway advisory board met in New York on the 10th, and after considerable discussion elected the following commissioners: Messrs. Midgley, Emlay, Fairthorne, Smith, Vining and Walker. Mr. Walker was elected chairman.

Over the 10th Emperor William presented to Potsdam and ordered the troops, garrison, artillery, infantry and cavalry out for exercise in crossing the River Havel on the ice, which was broken to a depth of thirteen inches.

A bill is pending in the Michigan Legislature prohibiting the issuing of railroad passes to members, under penalty of a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $10,000. The law also applies to all State officers and judges of courts of record.

The American Bazaar Association of San Francisco has been organized, with a capital of between two and three million dollars, in opposition to the English syndicate which recently bought out all the bazaars in San Francisco.

The Turkish Government is giving a great impulse to the development of Asia Minor, thereby reversing the policy of ventures. Several lines of railway are in course of construction, and German energy and capital are being especially encouraged.

The telegraphic report of the bequests made by Emma Abbott's will, the mother-in-law of the testatrix (Martha G. Wetherell) is said to have been left $1,000. The amount as stated was an error of transmission or receipt, the actual bequest being $100.

Mr. ANSEL, the Mexican Consul at Montreal, who has just returned from Ottawa, says: "Recreancy with Canada is now a great question in the Republic of Mexico. The matter that should at once occupy the attention of the Canadian people is the securing of an extradition treaty with the great Spanish-speaking republic."

The large malthouse of E. M. Van Tassel at West Eleventh street and Thirteenth avenue, New York City, was completely gutted by fire, early on the morning of the 11th, with a loss of about $100,000 in stock and stores to the building. The latter was a six-story brick structure and was filled with over 500 barrels of feed and grain.

A special meeting of the New York Chamber of Commerce on the 10th, to consider the financial legislation now pending in Congress, brought together a large attendance of the most prominent merchants, bankers and men of business of that city. The discussion ended in the chamber placing itself on record as decidedly against the free coinage of silver.

REPRESENTATIVE PARKER, of Cleveland, a Republican, created a sensation in the Ohio House on the 10th, by offering a resolution severely condemning the Government's administration of Indian affairs and calling upon Ohio's Representatives in Congress to secure the transfer of the Indian Bureau from the Department of the Interior to the War Department.

LAWRENCE PENNELL, the wealthy New London (Wis.) banker, was convicted, on the 10th, at Oshkosh, of complicity in the Hurley Bank robbery of September, 1888. He was charged with receiving and disposing of a part of the $400,000 stolen from the bank. His son, Phelps Pennell, the bank's bookkeeper, and E. W. Baker, of Ironwood, Mich., are serving five-year terms for the robbery.

DR. SAMUEL G. DIXON, of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, informed his professional friends several weeks ago that he had not the slightest doubt that he had not the scrofulous fluid he discovered in 1888 was identical with that of Prof. Koch, so advised to make his formula public. The matter came before the Medical News just one day before the Koch formula was announced.

A CONSULTATION of Senator Hearst's physicians was held on the 10th, and it is said a doctor who reached that the Senator is suffering from cancer of the colon, or large intestine, and there is absolutely no hope of his recovery. While his physician is extremely reticent on the subject, the Senator's condition is a topic of wide interest among friends of the family, that while there has been no alarming change within the last few days, death may come at any moment.

SEPHARAY BLAINE, is making every effort practicable for the liberation of Rev. Francis Pennington, a clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal church and an agent of the American Bible Society, who has been incarcerated in a prison in Peru for the last six months for violation of the ecclesiastical laws.

CURRENT TOPICS.

THE NEWS IN BRIEFS.

FIFTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

In France, who was arrested in connection with the attempt to wreck the Czar's train at Borodino, will be transported to Siberia without the formality of a trial.

A Frenchman, who was arrested in connection with the attempt to wreck the Czar's train at Borodino, will be transported to Siberia without the formality of a trial.

The Cillian Minister to Great Britain, Senator Antonio, denies that there has been fighting in any part of Chili, or that there is any revolutionary movement in progress in that country.

The composition of Prof. Koch's emetic lymph was made public by authority on the 10th. The lymph consists of a glycerine-extract obtained by the pure cultivation of tuberculous bacilli.

The South Dakota House of Representatives, on the 13th, Brown and Maxon, the two Republican members from Brown County, were unseated and Seitzendorf and Bates, Independent contestants for their seats, were sworn in.

The railway advisory board met in New York on the 10th, and after considerable discussion elected the following commissioners: Messrs. Midgley, Emlay, Fairthorne, Smith, Vining and Walker. Mr. Walker was elected chairman.

The South Dakota House of Representatives, on the 10th, voted to appropriate $200,000 to the State Auditor for the payment of his salary, and to appropriate $100,000 to the State Auditor for the payment of his salary.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of the Senator, and was educated at the University of South Carolina, and was graduated in 1869.

The 10th was a day of comparative quiet in the Senate, the members having been engaged in the preparation of their speeches for the debate on the bill to increase the strength of the army.

SENATOR STEPHEN L. BENJAMIN, son of the late Senator Benjamin of South Carolina, who was a member of the Senate, died at Washington on the 10th, at the age of 40 years. He was a son of